The ex-Senators from New York can keenly appreciate the lamentation of Rip Van Winkle-"How soon we are forgot when we are gone!"

Mr. Conkling plainly sees that one senatorial seat in his own hand is worth can more than two seats in the hands of the the slightest pain to the patients. The New York Legislature.

There is something peculiar in Bradley's case. He appeared to know four or to give their names or number. five days in advance that he was going to be bribed. He is an innocent soul after having so checkered a career.

The examination of the scoundrel Sessions, at Albany, brings to mind the treachery of O. S. Winans, who in 1871 became a member of the Tweed ring. He was a Republican, but sold out to Tweed for $50,000 or $70,000. He was expelled, and retired to private life dispised by the Republicans and kicked by the Democratz. Sessions was the "go-between" between Tweed and Winans, and paid the money to Winans.

The first postage stamp ever used in this country was designed by Mr. E. A. Mitchell, in 1847, who was then postmaster at New Haven, Connecticut. It was nearly the size of the present stamp, but printed on brown paper. It was printed at Mitchell's own expense, for the con venience of citizens of New Haven who had complained to him of the delay some times occasioned by their being unable to prepay letters except in office hours. The stamp is now a curiosity, and high prices are offered for them by stamp col-

Mrs. Langtry has learned by this time that beauty of the professional type does not pay. She had an income of $6,000 a year, which should have been enough to have supported any beautiful woman, but the demands of the society in which she and her husband moved were cruelly exacting, and the result was that $6,000 a year did not begin to support them and they became heavily involved in debt. Her property has been sold at auction to pay the debts contracted while floating in the high social current. She is now paying the cost of being the most beautiful woman in England.

Commissioner Bentley, of the Pension bureau, reports to Secretary Kirkwood of the Interior department, that there are 130,000 pension cases now on file in his office waiting preliminary information as to service from the war department, and that the number is increasing at the rate of one hundred a day. This might well alarm the people and lead them to ask when the demands upon the public treasury on account of the war are going to cease. It is to be hoped that no undelay will made in disposing of them. If any pension claims honest ones, and undoubtedly some of them are, they should be allowed, and the balance killed, and the quicker the better. This is rather a poor outlook for the treasury so far as drains are concerned from the pension bureau. Millions are going out every year, and the amount seems to be on the increase.

THAT INCURABLE DISEASE.

Some time ago Mr. George Cable, of New Orleans, published an account of a case of Asiatic leprosy being in a house in that city. People put very little faith in this "nightmare story," but an investigation reveals the fact that it is no novelist's fancy, but only the small part of a terrible fact. The State board of matter, and there is the genuine leprosy | the country's development, the harmonthat city. The State board also published a statement of the progress of leprosy in that State during the past themselves small land proprietors, and century. In 1773 the disease was quite prevalent there among the blacks, and a hospital was established for them about that time. At present the leprosy is confined chiefly to the French, Germans, and those of Russian extraction. It appears to be heriditary, and the families infected by it are shunned as a corpse would be. There is no separate hospital for these incurable patients, and wherever they are taken they spread the disease and scatter

The disease is more generally found in the low grounds near the rice swamps, and there it has been for many years. The president of the board of health found this Asiatic leprosy existing in different generations of six families. The disease has became so terrible in some Henry Stoddard.

neighborhoods that the poor creatures afflicted with it have been driven out from human habitation, and are now living in the swamps and dying of decay. In many cases, the flesh had become insensible as bone, and be exposed to fire without State board of health could not make a correct estimate of the number as many hid themselves and their friends refused

It is strange that the people of Louisiana do not take some steps to provide a place of refuge for these accursed beings. They should be separated from their friends and given shelter. There is no telling to what degree of fatality the disease may reach if it be allowed to spread as it is now spreading. It is as incurable and contagious now as in the days of Moses, and no efforts should be spared to check its progress.

A SCOUNDREL IN POLITICS.

The bribery investigation at Albany has gone far enough to prove that Senator Sessions is a political scoundrel of the first order. He is one of these men who have no conscience; who never have formed a standard of right in their own minds; whose object in life is to make all the money they can regardless of the means employed to obtain it; who will sell themselves to any corporation, to any clique, to any set of men, and to any scheme, for any price they can get. Sessions is just one of these men. His life has been full of corrupt practices, and the longer he remains in politics the more hardened and soulless he becomes. His total lack of honor and his dishonest movements in and about the New York Legislature

He began his experience about the Legislature as a lobbyist more than twenty years ago, and for nine consecufor any measure they might be interested in. He even went so far at one time as to hire Winans, a Republican member, to go over to the Democratic side in order to break the Republican majority. He took money from either party and would work for or against any scheme no matter what its character, if the price suited his pocket. He would also gamble, and would train with the worst ele ment about the Legislature, and then work himself into the good graces of the better class of members so as to extend his influence among members of all sorts of standing. In this way Sessions made many thousands of dollars, and never dividing with anybody, but keeping all he got, he became a man of considerable

He now disgraces the Republican side of the Legislature. When he was in the Legislature several years ago as a Re publican, his corruption in office retired him to private life for awhile. But his cheek and money brought him to the political surface again, and we find him in the Senate of New York. If Bradley was man of average honor and had a moderately clean record, the public would al most accept at once his statement that Sessions attempted to bribe him to vote for Depew. As it is there are probably eight chances out of ten that the testimony of Bradley is true.

The New York Legislature has been tainted with corruption for a number of years. The reason of this can be easily explained. There are more powerful cor porations, more gigantic enterprises, and more wealth in that State than any other in the Union. Where there are such vast corporate and private interests at stake, and where so much important legislation is required, it is hardly a wonder that bribery and corruption find their way into the Legislature; and it need not astonish any one that among members who represent these powerful corporations and immensely rich individuals, often times whose in terests are conflicting, that there are some who can be seduced by flattering and bought by money. It is not a very cheer ing commentary on our political system. And in case of Sessions, the Republicans of his own district, knowing him to be a political trickster and a dishonest man should never have resurrected him from his political grave.

The July number of the North American Review bears the usual characterisof timeliness. Carl Schurz leads off with a suggestive paper on "Present Aspect of ses the Indian obstacle in the way of izing of habits, occupations and interests of the red men, the necessity of educating their youth, the making of the men the offering of inducements to them to sell for a fair compensation the lands they do not cultivate. Next a caustic writer gives the views of "A Yankee Farmer" on "The Religious Conflicts of the Age," to the discomfiture of the modern agnostic, moralist and evolutionist. Another trenchant article is "The Power of Public Plunder," by James Parton, which appeals to the sons of our men of character and wealth, on patriotic grounds, to enter into politics, and become the safeguards of their country against rings and bosses. Mr. Henry George dwells on "The Common Sense of Taxation." "The cost of Cruelty" is presented by Mr. Henry Bergh, and "A Study of Ten-

WHEELER COMES.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 17.—The Lone Fisherman from St. Lawrence county arrived this afternoon to find himself the only hon in the place, the three Buck chiefs having already started on their weekly pilgrimage to the metropolis. He has received his friends this evening, and several informal conferences have been held with the leading anti-administration men. His coming has not been simply to further his own candidacy, but has included the purpose to counsel the Senators to elect Senaand put an end to wearisome and disagreeable dead-The anti-Conkling forces need the presence of an acknowledged leader, and Wheeler may assume that position during his stay. He will not stand in the way of a more acceptable candidate, but is ready to encourage any movement looking to a settlement of the difficulty. Wheeler is in excellent spirits, and talks freely of the senatorial

"In my opinion," said he to a reporter to-night, "the best course for the administration side is to make the strongest canvass they can with two decidedly administration men. Let us run up the votes of two such, and not waste any of our strength on anti-administration candidates. Any Bucks that we may run will naturally be antagonized by Conkling. Let us therefore, stick to our own men, not that I think we can elect two administration men. I do believe, however, that we can elect one, and I also believe that if we pursue the policy have indicated the Bucks will present a candidate on whom we can unite, and the satisfactory outcome will be the election of one administration and one Buck

He also said that he thought Depew was entitled to the administration position, as he had borne the burnt of the fight, and he would not allow his own candidacy to interfere with his success. At the administration conference to-night it was decided to keep Wheeler and Depew ahead for the next day or two.

PITNEY REMOVED.

Washington, June 17.-Secretary Windom cut the gordian knot to-day in the treasury matter by declaring the office of custodian abolished, in view of the Indian Problem," in which he discus- the fact that it was doubtfut if the law abolished four years ago, and has not been recognized in the appropriation bill since. Mr. Pitney has simply been a clerk since that time detailed to do the work of custodian. The order stated to-day that the duties of the position would devolve upon the chief clerk. Still it is physically impos-sible for him to do the work, so that some clerk will evidently have to be assigned to the duty. It will appear, therefore, that the change will only be a technical one, which is practically a removal of Mr. Pitney, to whose duty some one else must be assigned.

APPLETON'S BLAZE.

The Big Woolen Mill and Farniture Establishment Destroyed.

APPLETON, June 17 .- A very disastrous fire occurred in this city this afternoon, resulting in the total destruction of the Appleton woolen mills and the Appleton furniture factory, with all their contents. The fire originated in the woolen mill, and is supposed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion of woolen waste. The furniture factory was some distance from the woolen mill, but such was the intensity of the heat from the latter, and, as is claimed by many, the stupidity displayed by fire department, the former building soon took fire was wholly destroyed. At the time the furniture factory caught fire some of the men were on the roof endeavoring to prevent its taking fire, and some of them found their retreat cut off. One of them, an old man named Norton, fell or jumped from the roof, and received such injuries that he died in about two hours. Others are reported missing, and it seems possible at this time that one if not more persons lost their lives in the burning building. The loss on the woolen mill and contents is estimated at from $40,000 to $50,000, and on the furniture factory $20,000 to $25,000.

GENERAL GRANT.

NEW YORK, June 17-General Grant and ex-Senator Conkling held a long consultation to-night, presumably on the subject of the senatorship. The $250,000 raised for him by his friends, with the accumulated interest is to be presented in a few days by the committee. Mr. Childs, of Philadelphia, will come to New York to assist in the presentation.

THE CAMBRIA MILL BURNED

CAMBRIA, Wis., June 17-The Cambria flouring-mill was burned this morning. It was a stone structure, three stories high, and contained four run of stone and a set of rollers. The mill was equipped with all the modern improvements for custom and merchant milling, and was run by steam and water power. There were about 1,000 bushels of wheat in the mill, which was lost, but a quantity of flour was saved. The mill was owned by Samuel Keely, and valued at about $12,000, upon which there was insurance of $7,200.

A MYSTERIOUS CASE.

WINONA, Minn., June 17 .- The body of dead man was found under a raft of logs this noon. His death was evidently caused by violence, notwithstanding a verdict by the coroner's jury of death by drowning. His upper teeth had been knocked out, a wound was visible on his forehead, and a bruise on his neck. The body was badly decomposed, and had probably been in the water for two or three weeks. He was about 35 years of age, well built, and rather short in statue. He wore short whiskers of a sandy color. He had on a pair of dark pants, striped stockings, and a light and a heavy shirt. No papers were found upon the body. He answers the description of no one around here.

I was so weak at one time that I could not leave my bed. In the summer of 1877 I was admitted to the City Hospital. While there the doctors said I had a hole in my left lung as big as a half dollar. I expended over a hundred dollars in doctors and medicines. I was so far gone at one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I laughed at my friends, thinking that my case was incurable, but I got a bottle to satisfy them, when, to my surprise and gratification, I commenced to feel better. My hope, once dead, began to revive, and to-day I feel in better spirits than I have the past three years.

"I write this hoping you will publish it, so that every one afflicted with Diseased Lungs will be induced take DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS, and be convinced that CON-SUMPTION CAN BE CURED. MISTAKEN FOR A HIGHWAYMA

A stalwart, but tired-looking horseman was riding toward the village of some, but he wore an anxious expresto consider him one who had traveled his meal. far that day, and who was not only from a foreign country, but laboring under some deep distress of mind, sor-

"Valuable information!" sneered the traveler, as the mare made unusually quick time over the road. "Couldn't I see for myself? Had I not been in haste to get at the end of my journey I should not, of course, have gone on before morning, after forty miles of travel under a summer sun. The deuce is in my luck, to be roasted by day and half drowned by night, as this apfast the mare goes! A few hours have worked wonders with her; or, perhaps, instinct bids her speed to escape the tempest, if possible."

A heavy crash of thunder just then startled both horse and horseman-the ly around them.

"She has been over-fed, or she is very skittish," thought the horseman, as he felt the tremor of the frightened animal's limbs, and her gait for a short distance became irregular. "Our road lies through a wood for a few miles, as I am told; and when the shower is on us in full force, what with the lightning, away. The landlord sent at once for Mrs. Dunbar, who came in great haste and anguish, identified the mare, even the saddle, and now joined in the painful proaching storm seems to forebode. Ha! what a vivid flash! the tempest is coming sooner than I expected. How upon his beast, not deeming that he was coming to the very place where he would be must easily detected.

The ire of the people at the tavern was aroused, and they again confronted the stranger, having procured a constable, and to his dire alarm, the opening cannonade of the elemental mare having been brought from the battle which was soon to sweep furious- stable, he was told to consider himself under arrest, unless he could give a satisfactory explanation of the mystery. What to Wear.

Brunettes may wear ambers and all yellows, browns, maroons, red, olive green and very dark blue, especially in velvet. They cannot, as a rule, wear light or medium blue, though some who have brilliancy of complexion can wear pale blue. Light greens, grays, pur-ples and all shades of violet must be avoided by the brunette. However, if she has black hair, pale, smooth skin and blue or gray eyes, she may wear both reds and blues in all shades, cream white and pure white, bluish gray, black and stone-color. If her eyes are dark, she may add amber and almost all shades of yellow. She may wear diamonds, topaz, garnet, coral and Etruscan gold jewelry. Women who have chestnut hair, pale, smooth skin and hazel eyes must not indulge a fancy for reds, brilliant yellows or medium blues. They may wear purples, all evasive pale shades of yellows, olive greens, very dark and very light blue and creamy white. Corals, turquoises, and small diamonds set with other jewels in dull gold or platinum, as well as enameled, mosaic and cameo jewelry,

Women of no pronounced typewhich class is legion in number—usually called plain, because they are not brilliant, but to offset this are often endowed with great delicacy of form, refinement of expression, and fine eyes, but they have dull, ashy-brown hair, and no brilliancy of complexion. Their eyes are oftener grayish-blue than brown or hazel. Red is not becoming to these women, and they should not wear fawn-color nor gray. Brown is just as bad. Black, particularly black velvet; white, particularly creamy-white woolen fabrics; water-blue, flush-rose, black white, pronounced blues, yellows, reds, and browns. Golden blondes, with rosy complexions, may wear blue-white, all shades of blue, rose-pink, all shades of green, yellow, and purple; but, of all colors, red must be avoided.

The Plague in Mesopotamia.

According to the latest dispatches from Constantinople the plague has broken out with renewed violence at Nedjeff, in Mesopotamia, or Medsched Ali (Ali'sgrave), as Mohammedan's prefer to call the place. Dr. Scherer, who has been sent there by the International Sanitary Commission at Constantinople, reports that during the week ending May 2 fifty-six persons died daily out of a population of about 6,000. It is generally supposed that the inundation of the low lands of the Euphrates River is the only cause of the outbreak of the plague, or black death. They are a contributing, but not the only cause. The real cause of the pestilence has been known for years to the Persian and Turkish Governments, but they have done nothing towards its preven-tion. The black death is not an uncommon disease in that part of Meso-To the northwest of this lake is situated the City of Kerbela, where is to be found the golden mosque and the grave of Hussein, the son of Caliph Ali and the daughter of the Prophet. These two cities are the real breeding-places of the dreadful disease. To Nedjeff and Kerbela the Shiites, or religious followers of Ali and Hussein, chiefly Persians, send the dead bodies of their friends and relatives, because they believe that to be buried near Hussein's which, being made of light material, fall to pieces, and thousands upon thousands of corpses are left rotting under the rays of an Oriental sun. In America, beef takes precedence | Health. over other meats; generally cooked in pieces, or what we call steaks. I maintain that these steaks when but half cooked are not the best food for a weak digestion. A strong flow of gastric juice is necessary to act upon beef, and that flow a weak digestion cannot afford. So great is the preconceived opinion about the benefit to be derived from "rare beef," that people who have really no power to deal with it will look upon it as the only thing that can support them. This is a mistake. All meat to be really digestible ought to have passed through a heat process in cooking which will congulate or thicken the fluid portions of it, partially soften the fiber, and make it easy for maceration, and bring the food in such a state into the stomach that it does not need raising in temperature. A weak digestion must always be careful of raw and surroundings begets tameness of appe-cold substances—of substances that tite. bring with them a lower temperature. stomach. I am, however, also of opinion that, as we progress in the knowledge of food and its action, we shall more and more discontinue chops and thing. The trouble lies in making the take to a milder way of cooking meat. Something must be very wrong in our food economy if the suffering from the disarrangement of the digestive process is so universally widespread. Roasted beef, when properly done, is strength-giving, and would be digestible if it were not eaten in large quantities and were properly masticated. Bolting food is about the weight felt after bolted food is indeeasier of preparation. A well-coveredup roast of mutton that has not lost its gravy in cooking is a very wholesome dish for the dyspeptic. Steamed mut-ton also is nourishing and light for the stomach, and should be far more often served in our restaurants. It would be an excellent change, and yet it is but seldom met with. A slice or two of a steamed leg of mutton, with caper sauce and some light vegetable, may be eaten with safety by a delicate person. A rice pudding, well steeped in milk and prepared without eggs, but flavored with ground cinnamon and sugar, will follow so well that for once the dyspeptic need not undergo the inevitable torture after he has dined. Lamb possesses still more the characteristics needed for delicate persons. It is, common disease in that part of Meso-potamia lying southwest from Bagdad, between the right shore of the Eu-three between the right shore of the Eu-physics of the Eu-three Eu-physics of the Eu-physics phrates and the Syrian Desert. Or neck of lamb, gently similared with rice, a few pepper-corns, mace and salt being added, also some finely-chopped parsley, is a very excellent dish for the dyspeptic. Veal has excellent properties. Like the meat of all young animals that are not full grown it is Dshara, near Nedjeff. Roasted veal is a dish in which a weak digestion may indulge sometimes, if the roasting process has not been such as to put the meat in an overheated oven, where the juice is dried out, but if the meat has been covered with greased paper or a cover while roasting, and so remains moist and becomes tender.
